I had the thought one day as I received someone's business card that I should have one, too. Maybe I can design my own business card, I thought. It would be fun. I might as well design a typeface specifically for it. I thought a simple geometric slab face with some faux elegant touches would suit me, and worked on such a font for a few days.

The unusual forms for the lowercase a and g came quickly. I quickly finished the rest of the lowercase letters and the uppercase, but I'm not sure if I made them consistent enough with the a and g without making them too idiosyncratic.

I came back to the design after a few weeks, tweaked the designs of some letters, and now I present this work, still in the rough preliminary stages, for your critique.
