Ahn Sang-Soo (※ 1952) ist ein koreanischer Grafikdesigner und Typograf.

Sein Werk als Grafiker zeichnet sich durch formell minimalistische Bezüge zur Landschaft Koreas aus und umfasst vor allem Plakatentwürfe und Bücher. Bekannt wurde Sang-Soo als Erneuerer der traditionellen Hangeul-Schrift, für die er mehrere Zeichensätze entwarf.

Rei Kawakubo went to university and studied art and literature, like a lot of bright girls do. But then she taught herself how to design, set up shop, and soon started to change the fashion world. Maybe design came over her like a dream, or maybe she was possessed by genius. Wherever that force majeure came from, suddenly this small, mild-mannered woman who had worked in textiles and as a stylist for a bit began to create startlingly original clothes that made the world take notice. She started making clothes under the label Comme des Garçons in 1969 (later incorporating it as a company in 1973).
